

MOTHER HEN BABY CONCIERGE

HELPING EXPECTANT PARENTS NAVIGATE EACH STAGE FROM BUMP, BABY AND BEYOND

WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 10, 2008

BabyPlus Prenatal System - the In Utero iPod?

How could a pre-natal boom box transform your newborn into a great sleeper and eater? I wasn't sure but after reading hundreds of supposedly unbiased reviews, I was willing to shell out $150 to find out.

So, what is it? Here is an excerpt from their website...

"The BabyPlus curriculum is a series of 16 naturally derived sounds that resemble a mother's heartbeat. The rhythm of the sounds increases incrementally as the pregnancy progresses. The BabyPlus sonic pattern introduces your child to a sequential learning process, built upon the natural rhythms of their own environment."

The product promises to promote faster latching, strong fine motor skills, early milestones and easy going dispositions.

Perhaps we were destined to have a child who came into this world alert, calm and without the typical fussiness you find with a newborn. Chloe started sleeping through the night at 6 weeks old, sitting up at 4 1/2 months and holding her own bottle at 5 months. Perhaps, the in utero iPod was well worth the money. I'm not sure but we won't take any chances with the next child. He or she will jam out every day if it means I have another baby as wonderful and easy going as Chloe.

POSTED BY MOTHER HEN BABY CONCIERGE AT 10:14 PM
LABELS: BABY GEAR, EDUCATION, PRE-NATAL